A Life Lesson.

There! little girl! don't cry!
They have broken your doll, I know;
And your tea set blue
And your playhouse, too,
Are things of long ago;
But childish troubles will soon pass by:

There! little girl! don't cry!
They have broken your slate, I know;
And the glad, wild ways
Of your schoolgirl days
Are things of long ago;
But life and love will soon come by:
There! little girl! don't cry!

There! little girl! don't cry!
They have broken your heart, I know;
And the rainbow gleams
Of your youthful dreams
Are things of long ago;
But heaven holds all for which you sigh:
There! little girl! don't cry!

—James Whitcomb Riley in Kansas City Journal.

EIGHT INTO FORTY-EIGHT.

The Employer Did Not Quite Understand the Arithmetic of the Clerk

A clerk in an Austin store informed his employer that his sister was going to get married, and he wanted a furlough of forty-eight hours to attend the wedding, which was to take place out in the country somewhere. The merchant could not well spare the services of the young man for that length of time, but he finally consented to let him go on condition that he would return promptly at the expiration of two days.

"As soon as my forty-eight hours are up I'll be back," said the young man, hurrying off to catch the train, and that was the last his employer saw of him for six solid days. Then he walked in, gripsack in hand and a beaming smile on his face, remarking:

"I'm back on time."

"Back on time!" roared the exasperated employer. "Do you call six days forty-eight hours?"

"Of course I do. What else do you call it?"

"Have you lost the use of your mental faculties, or are you trying, sir, to take unwarranted liberties with me?"

"Why, I am surprised. I told you I wanted forty-eight hours' recreation, didn't I?"

"Certainly. And I gave it to you."

"Just so. And I work in the store eight hours a day, don't I?"

"Of course."

"Well, eight into forty-eight goes six times, and I have been gone eight hours a day for six days, so you see I'm on time. If there is one thing I know better than another it is how to be on hand at the appointed hour." —Texas Sifting.

ED. THE INDEPENDENT:—

I have a small grievance—belonging to a volunteer company I attend drill regularly. Usually beer is in order after proceedings—about $5 being spent. Now, I charitably represent that it would be more in order if the sum was expended on meal tickets for unemployed members; at least 40 tickets of the face value of 15c. could be purchased in lieu of the money spent on sour beer, which recently has hardly been fit to make bad vinegar. Moreover, the unemployed are apparently necessary to swell the ranks and save them the payments of taxes, failure to do which might land them in Hotel de Low instead of wearing uniform. UNEMPLOYED MEMBER.

The California Feed Company have received a large invoice of goods by the S. G. Wilder. They quote the lowest prices, and the finest qualities in all the lines, and give full weight. Amongst the lot are to be found, hay, oats, rolled barley, bran, corn, cracked corn, oil-cake, etc. Everything is of the freshest, and if you want to get the best and cheapest the California Feed Co. will hear from you.
